

WorkMate AI — IT Support Policy

Purpose: This fictional policy explains how employees should request technical assistance.

IT support covers approved company devices, accounts, network access, and supported workplace software.

Employees should use the internal IT ticket process for issues that require tracking.

Urgent security concerns should follow the security reporting process rather than ordinary troubleshooting.

This document is fictional and intended for WorkMate AI RAG testing.

WorkMate AI — Laptop and Software Issues

Employees should describe the device, application, and symptoms when creating an IT ticket.

Basic troubleshooting may include restarting the affected application or device when appropriate.

Employees should not install unauthorized software to bypass company controls.

Repeated or unresolved problems should be tracked using the IT ticket reference.

IT may request additional diagnostic information to investigate an issue.

WorkMate AI — VPN and Network Access

Employees who cannot connect to an approved VPN should verify their network connection and then contact IT if the issue continues.

VPN credentials must not be shared with other people.

Employees should not disable security controls to obtain network access.

A support ticket should include the error message and approximate time of failure when available.

Access permissions are managed by authorized personnel.

WorkMate AI — Password and Account Support

Employees must keep passwords and authentication codes private.

Account-access problems should be reported through the approved IT support process.

IT staff should not require employees to disclose a password in a support request.

Suspicious account activity should be reported as a security issue.

Employees should follow approved password-reset and authentication procedures.

WorkMate AI — Ticket Process

An IT ticket should contain a clear issue description and employee identifier where required.

Employees can use the ticket reference to request a status update.

Creating a ticket does not guarantee immediate resolution; priority depends on the issue and support process.

For issues involving possible data exposure or compromise, follow the security policy as well.

Document status: Fictional WorkMate AI project IT policy for RAG testing; not a real company policy.
